Our 40-Year Legacy of Pioneering Leadership in Quality

For the past 40 years, ACMQ has been a leader in shaping the theories and practices necessary to deliver high quality healthcare, with a focus on the education of physicians and PhDs. The College has been highly successful in meeting our goal of advancing the field of medical quality. In fact, the College has been so successful, that medical quality has gone mainstream and evolved from a niche field for physicians and researchers to become an integral and global focus for specialty societies, medical board exams, governmental and private payers and providers of all types.

In 2014, in keeping with its history of leadership in the field, and in recognition that the delivery of high quality medical care has evolved to become a "team sport", the College expanded its definition of "full member" to include a much more diverse and experienced set of team players, including quality experts, educators and leaders who hold advanced practice nursing degrees, PharmDs, MBAs, MHAs, etc. While physicians continue to play valuable roles in promoting and educating others about the field of medical quality, Healthcare Professionals, who have achieved a masters level degree or higher, were welcomed to join the College as full members.

ACMQ provides support for your entire quality team!

ACMQ was founded in 1973 as the American College of Utilization Review Physicians. The discipline of medical quality was a relatively new science for most physicians, scientists and allied health professionals at that time. In 1991, the College changed its name to the American College of Medical Quality to reflect the evolving changes in the specialty of Medical Quality.
